Macroeconomic updates

Oil and gas industry continue to witness positive signs of recovery with constructive macroeconomic drivers, on the back of effective vaccination campaigns linking to improved activity with strong oil prices, bringing opportunities for future exploration and related services industries.

Post-pandemic recovery for the Group remained uneven, with aviation and insurance segments reporting persistent improved set of results, while drilling segment remained under pressure until first half of the year, whereas the latest strategic realizations within the drilling segment resulted an improved set of results for the segment during Q3-21.

Business performance updates and outlook

Drilling segment

Rig day-rates for the offshore fleet improved during Q3-21, as the new day-rates took effect starting from July'21 and led to improved financial performance for the segment during Q3-21. Within onshore fleet two suspended rigs were deployed and commenced operations during Q3-21, after a year of suspension since COVID-19 outbreak. Moreover, all the five Gulfdrill JV rigs remained fully operational since Q2-21.

Aviation segment

Aviation segment continue to witness improved performance with better flying activity within both domestic and international operations on account of ease of restrictions, coupled with successful renewal of some international aviation contracts. Also, additional contributions from MRO business continued to support segment's financial performance.

Moreover, Turkish subsidiary and Moroccan venture added one new aircraft each during the year, in order to meet increased demand from the market. This was in addition to a new helicopter (AW139) being added during the year to the domestic fleet, as a back-up to existing operations.

Insurance segment

Insurance segment managed to build up its strong performance, achieved throughout the period by further expanding both the medical and general lines of businesses, where successful renewal of major contracts and additional coverage for major contracts within the energy line of business were main highlights. Additionally, the segment continued to expand its footprints within domestic SME market, specifically within the medical line of business and added new clients during the period.

Catering

Catering segment continue to remain under pressure with restrictions mandated since the start of pandemic in relation to food delivery, transportation and manpower accommodation. This has affected segment's performance in terms of lowered revenues, coupled with additional layer of costs incurred in order to comply with the requirements leading to negative margins for the segment since pandemic. However, despite stiff market challenges faced during the period, the segment was able to win new contracts within manpower line of business.

Revenue was mainly impacted by rigs' suspension within onshore fleet carried forward since last year until 1H-21, where two of the suspended rigs had commenced operations during Q3-21. In addition, rig day-rates remained depressed during first half of the year and impacted revenue growth on a year-on-year basis. Catering segment reported a revenue of QR 258 million, with a decline of 19% as compared to the same period of last year. This was in addition to loss of some contracts within both manpower and catering contracts, which adversely affected the overall growth.

The segment reported a net loss of QR 19 million for nine-month period ended 30 September 2021, compared to a net loss of QR 4 million for 9M-20, mainly due to lowered margins and declining revenues.

On a quarter-on-quarter basis, catering segment continue to report a declining trend, where revenue for Q3-21 marginally decreased by 1% due to loss of a catering contract during the current quarter, while profitability remained negative on account of depressed margins.
